

 Memorial day is the 27th, please take a moment to honor our fallen veterans, who paid the ultimate price for freedom. ***

Recently, I came across an article online featuring a new "Hurst Hemi Under Glass" late model Challenger-Demon, with the supercharged 850HP Hemi relocated to the trunk, and an interesting glass hatchback-like thing covering it (see below left), presumably to pay homage to the original Hemi Under Glass. It is all painted up in the classic Hurst gold like the original, and doing a wheel-stand.

The original was a 65 Plymouth Barracuda that Hurst modified to showcase their products. (above right)

I opened the article very intrigued and began reading, only to find out this was just a rendering (photo shop) by some designer (think some pimply face kid living in his parent's basement) and his what-if, or what could be, modern-day wheel-standing grandstander talk about pandering to the Mopar philanderer banter! General Quarters! General Quarters! Fake news has come to Mopar legacy ladies and gentlemen! Sheesh! Yes, I feel better now, thank you.

Mr. Designer, why not start your own wheel-stander legacy? You could use the new 1000 HP "Hellephant" crate motor, skip the cheesy glass hatchback feature, and just call it the "Hellaphant Trunk," with a graphic of Dumbo on the side and tusks protruding from the grill (rolls eyes).

Incidentally, the Hellephant crate motor, MSRP $29,995, sold out in just 2 days.
